

American International School of Rotterdam

From the Director

There is a new high quality magazine in Holland aimed at the family market within the international market. "FM" or Family Matters is only in its second edition but has already attracted quite a following. There is something in the magazine for everyone. There is a pullout section for children and a broad array of articles for you as parents. In this second edition there are articles on the internet, dyslexia, interesting museums, maternity and cyber-bullying to name a few. If you are interested, there are copies available here at school for free. I heartily recommend this magazine and think you will find it is worth your time.

It's spring, so it must be time for the Annual Fun Run and Spring Fair sponsored by the PTSA. We'll start our day on Sunday, 17 May, by lacing up our running (walking) shoes and heading off into the park as part of the Fun Run. Following the Fun Run we quickly shift into the Spring Fair portion of the day with lots of good food and activities for the kids. This is always a good day with something for everyone – we hope to see you there.

Later in this edition of The Shark, parents of high school students will find the schedule of semester exams. As you will note, the exams begin on Wednesday, 3 June, and run through Monday, 8 June. A reminder that all morning exams begin at 9:00 AM and all afternoon exams begin at 1:00 PM. Students must be in school at least 20 minutes prior to the beginning of each exam. During the four exam days, there are no regularly scheduled classes and high school students need only be in school when they have an exam.

The next Board meeting for this school year is scheduled for Tuesday, 19 May, in the AISR Library. As always, the meeting convenes at 7:30 PM and is open to all members of the AISR community.

Lastly, I would like to remind you about our last half-day Wednesday of this school year. Next Wednesday, 13 May, students will be dismissed at 11:30 AM. During that afternoon the faculty, staff and some parents will continue their work on the self-study that is associated with the school accreditation process. We are close to finishing a major portion of this 18 month project which will be finalized during the first couple of months of the next school year.

Director

Elementary Principal's Message

I would like to thank all of you who came to the Creative Arts Evening on Thursday. There was a great turnout, proving once again that you take a very active interest in your child's work by supporting these types of events. The students did a wonderful job reading their stories, the musical entertainment was very enjoyable and the Art Show definitely highlighted some very artistic young people. As has been the case for the past couple of years, all donations will be given to the Ronald McDonald House for needy children. Thank you again for your generosity.

Going along with the theme of 'Creativity', three visitors from the Stolt Neilsen Transportation came to the school to choose the pictures for their new boat. Students in grades 1 through 5 participated in this exciting opportunity. They selected drawings from more than 36 students. These pictures will now be framed and will hang in the Maritime Museum prior to being taken on board the ship. I will keep you up-dated regarding the exact dates of these events. We are very proud that AISR was chosen for this honor – thank you to Mr. Murray Fulton for making this a possibility.

Hopefully we can look forward to some warm weather in the next couple of weeks. The school building can get very warm at this time of the year, so it might be a good idea if you could send a small bottle of water with your child every day. He/she can keep it on her desk and drink it as needed. By doing this we may be able to encourage the students to drink more water.

I look forward to seeing you at the Spring Fair on Sunday, May 17. This is always such a fun event!

In the meantime have a wonderful weekend,

Anne-Marie Blitz,

Elementary Principal

The third grade has been working

From Our Classrooms: Computer Classes

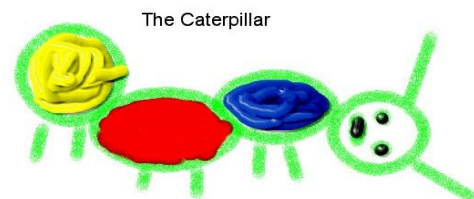

The elementary computer classes taught by Ms. LeMieux have been very busy the last few months. This week several classes have finished projects. The kindergarten have been learning to use KidPix, they have drawn dragons, knights, bears, and birds. They wrote a story about their bird drawing. This last week they drew a mini-beast as part of the ICT integration with the Kindergarten curriculum.

The first grade has been hard at work as scientists growing tulips and observing their growth. In computer class they have been charting the growth using line graphs. Last week they analyzed their data and wrote a conclusion about their data.

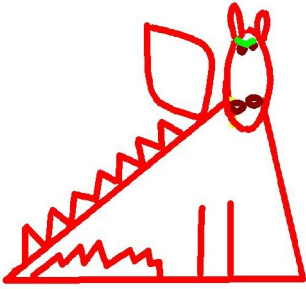

The second grade has become very good at using PowerPoint, They have made three slide shows, two of which they have printed as little books:

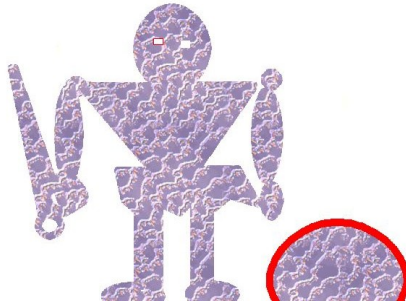

The Caterpillar

by Brooklynn

From Our Classrooms: Cont'd

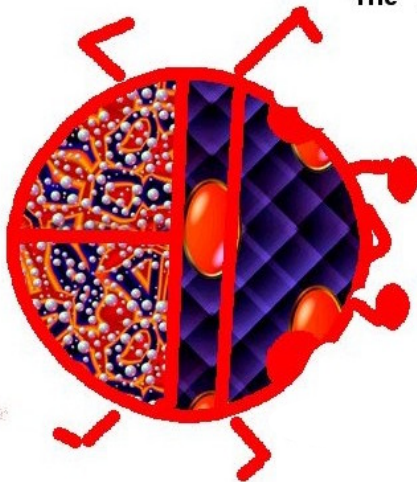

since November on a volcano research project. This week they have been putting together the posters they researched and created on their chosen volcano in preparation to be hung up in the hallway.

The fifth grade has been learning to use iMovie. They are almost all finished with a project entitle "What is 'Home' to Me" and they are working to put on video a project they started last fall about their class trip to Arnhem.

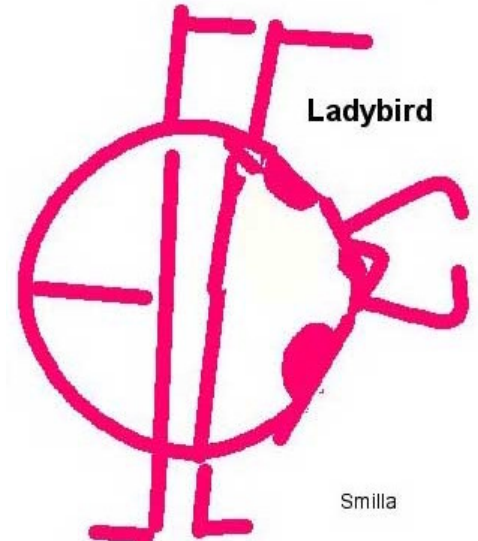

Seek the Stunning Scenery of the Savanna

Have you been out lately? Are you an animal lover? Dying to see a lion or cheetah? Come visit the tropical Savanna!

Many of these projects will be hung up in the halls in the next few weeks. Be sure to look for them and tell us what you think.

The fourth grade has just finished their biome brochures using AppleWorks. This is an ICT integration with their biomes studies in science class.

Counselor's Corner

Students in the 5th grade will get an opportunity next week to be "real" Middle School students as they will visit middle school classes on Monday and Tuesday. Each year, at this time, we give the 5th grade students a chance to see what next year's classes will be like and how Middle School is different from elementary school. Our 6th grade class is always so willing to welcome them and be their "buddies" as they take them to their classes and show them around. Even though we are all in the same building, there are some distinct differences in what the kids do and where they go from 5th grade to 6th grade. The fifth graders get a taste of independence that they have not had just yet, including being able to choose and buy their lunch instead of using a lunch card for the set meal. (From past comments, that happens to be one of the high points of the day!) They will carry around small journals where they can write their impressions of things they liked and didn't like about visiting the 6th grade classes and questions they might have. At the end of the two days, we will have a 6th grade panel of students who will answer those questions and give them tips to help them make a great adjustment for next year.

In one of the last issues of the Shark, the list of students on the Honor Roll was printed. Due to a mistake on my part, some names were omitted or placed in the wrong section. I would like to congratulate Dong Hi, Dong Ju, Sarah and YuBin for also earning their place on the Honor Roll!

Progress Reports came out earlier in the week for all Middle and High School students. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to be in touch with the teachers. There are only five weeks of school left (three weeks before final exams start for the students in high school). Encourage your children to do their best in this final month and a half of school.

And finally, our 12th grade students have begun taking their IB exams this week, and will be meeting their obligations for earning the IB Diploma or certificates for which they have worked very hard over the last two years. Their graduation ceremony is just a few weeks away and then they will begin their journey into adulthood. As mentioned earlier, I would like to share the names of our graduates and where they will be planning to attend university. Students applied to many schools, and some received academic scholarships as well. This list indicates their final choice of school:

Curriculum Update

FOCUS ON SCIENCE

Excerpted from Julia Martin Langan

TRANSITION TIME – From 5th to 6th Grade

You will have noticed the information about 5th to 6th Grade transition in the Counselor's Corner this week. Children in 5th grade have been preparing for what lies ahead and in 6th grade your child will study science as a separate topic with a specialized teacher. As a result, the 5th grade year is viewed as a final opportunity to make sure students have a firm understanding of important concepts before they have science as an independent subject.

The AISR Science curriculum includes the following units of study:

THE PHYSICAL/MATERIAL WORLD (leading to Physics and Chemistry) Energy, Force, Light and Sound; Introduction to Chemistry

THE LIVING WORLD (leading to Biology)

HEALTH: Fit for Life and Human Body Systems

THE NATURE OF SCIENCE

What does it mean to be a scientist?

Independent Study

5th graders are capable of more independent work, and they learn to develop their skills as a scientist throughout the year. Through research, investigation and experimentation, students discover the nature of scientific thought and inquiry. Textbooks are certainly a good reference, but they are only one tool used to teach. Other tools include “SciLinks,” or specific Internet sites that can provide further information for students who want or need it at the end of selected topics. The NASA web site (www.nasa.gov) is one that teachers recommend; it contains some fun information and experiments on physical science and the laws of motion that are ideal for 5th graders.

Hands-On Learning

Your child's growing research and language arts skills don't mean s/he's too old for hands-on science exploration. So-called “discovery learning” is still vitally important. By experimenting with nature, objects, and materials, children learn about the world around them and how to think like scientists. “What children need to be taught is not factoids, but processes and skills,” says Gerald Wheeler, Ph.D., executive director of the National Science Teacher's Association. “It's not about knowing the parts of the grasshopper. Let's look instead at how the grasshopper fits into its environment and why.”

Getting children to experience science can be as simple as taking them outside. Using their skills of observation, children might find evidence of life, such as a leaf that's been eaten by a caterpillar, an ant-hill, or an exoskeleton from an insect. Putting their observations in context, they might be able to identify a food chain: The sun makes plant energy through photosynthesis, the caterpillar eats the leaf, and the bird eats the caterpillar. After making outdoor discoveries, children go inside to diagram and chart the information into a realistic food web. Another advantage to taking children outside is that it teaches them to relate scientific events to their own surroundings. This makes science real and encourages deeper learning and retention.

Science and Literacy

Your child will spend time reading and writing about science this year in anticipation of the scientific writing in 6th grade. Lab reports and other non-fiction sources are important types of writing in Science. One way 5th grade teachers integrate science and literacy is to explore the lives of famous scientists and inventors. Reading about scientists and trying to replicate their experiments is one way to inspire kids and help them understand the trial-and-error nature of science. The process of conceiving a scientific solution to a problem, proving the solution, and writing about it is a great way for students to learn to think like a scientist, and paves the way for more exciting discoveries in the future.

From the Athletic Department

Athlete of the Week

April 27th—May 1st

Emil is a new member of the Sharks Track and Field team and is eager to try out new events while he works hard to be a better athlete each day. At our recent meet in Antwerp, Emil won the 400 meters--a difficult event which he has never run before. As his athletic ability continues to shine, coaches O'Kane and Van Cleve hope to see Emil demonstrate strong leadership for our team as we prepare for NECIS. Way to go Emil!

Athlete of the Week

May 4th—8th

Brooke is the captain of the Girls' Soccer Team, and although not the most skilled on the team, she more than makes up for this in determination and enthusiasm. Brooke is always there to encourage teammates and her skills on the field have shown much improvement over the past 2 seasons. So much so that she is now asked to play in many different positions on the field and an asset for the lady sharks. Well done Brooke.

Step Right Up! You could be on next year's PTSA Board! As the school year is coming to an end, the PTSA is already planning for next year. The PTSA board is a vital part of the school and we hope you will consider being a part of it. There are many different positions available to suite your likes or talents such as President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, Public Relations, Outreach, etc. Please consider contributing your talents for a worthwhile organization like the PTSA. Time is critical - we would like to announce the new board at the final meeting on June 4th so please let us know as soon as possible.

Record Breaking Year for Fundraising!

Thanks to all the wonderful support for the school this year, we had a successful year for fundraising. From this year's dinner dance, we raised double the funds from last year. So now is the time to put the money back into the school. We strive to make contributions that have a positive impact to the school and benefit a wide range of students and staff in relation to cost. Last year the PTSA funded a high school scholarship, purchased the playground storage unit, gave €750 towards the Young Author books, bought microphones for the music department and new drum heads, new tents, purchased the Middle School t-shirts, gave €300 towards the refurbishing of the high school lounge, and purchased a washer and dryer (which is located on the 2nd floor for the school), and pays for the graduation and Prom cakes! As you can see, we make a difference! We will be discussing this year's distributions in our upcoming May and June meetings. Please join us and also feel free to submit your ideas to the PTSA for items that can make a positive impact on our school! Thank you.

News from CAS

"One Stop Drop" a huge success at CAS Showcase Night

With the recent "One Stop Drop Night" held at the CAS Showcase evening, we collected 630 kilos of clothing, shoes and bags, for Bag2School, which can be recycled and sent to Eastern Europe. Please view the certificate form Bag2School in this issue of the Shark. With this generous donation from the AISR community, we gained €189 this year to support the Bhavana Shukla's Charity in India. Bhavana is a former parent at AISR and we supported her charity last year, with a donation of €304.50. Her website is at <http://www.bhav4india.com/>

The actual page describing her connection with AISR can be seen at <http://bhav4india.com/index.php/513896>

It is wonderful to be able to say that we are supporting the charity annually, of a person who has had children at our school. Although we can see everything that Bhavana's charity does on her website, I would also like to encourage Bhavana and her children, Shalabh and Shreyaz to write to the Shark and let us know how they are getting on in Singapore. They are doubtless spending a lot of their time working for the charity, just like in the past. The great thing about such a charity is that it is run by a person with whom we have contact and who has a connection with our school.

The amount of books collected for READ TO GROW was also very pleasing. The READ TO GROW people will come to pick up the books sometime within the next three weeks. Thanks to all those who gave money to sponsor boxes. Money is still coming in for this and I will let you know the total in the next Shark. You may also still bring in books the the next couple of weeks, until they are collected. Our book totals will be added to the previous collection we had before Christmas, and we may even win the trophy for the biggest collection of books this year. You never know!

The CAS Showcase Night did not disappoint the rather large audience of fellow students, board members, teachers and parents. The 11th graders gave a run through about what they have been doing for the year. During the break, we all got the special treat of previewing the excellent IB art show. There was much of interest to view there and it is so interesting to see one's students working in a different genre than that which one is normally used to. After the break, the official part of the ceremonies took place, in which the seniors told, with pride, of their many achievements within the CAS Program. This year's seniors have been particularly active both inside and outside of school and have made inroads into integrating into the community in such activities ranging from joining a Dutch volleyball team to helping out their Dutch neighbors and serving soup at the local homeless shelter. It was with pride that I awarded CAS Diplomas of Achievement to the following students on that evening: Jonathan, Nastassja, Kim, Jeet, Brooke, Autumn, Artem and Yu Bin. Congratulations, senior class, on a job well done and good luck with the rest of your exams now.

High School Prom

Thanks to the expertise and the wonderful camera of Mr. Zeilstra, this year we have magnificent photos of the High School Prom, which took place on Saturday, April 25 at the Lommerijk Party Center. The addition of a Casino Royale theme proved to be really popular. Thanks to cardsharks Mr. Rosenblatt and Ms. Martin for manning the card tables and ensuring honest play! The music and dancing, catered by Mr. Temminck and his trusty helper, was also a great success, and we hope that they will be able to come back again next year. The seniors and their dates hired a Limousine and made a real entrance just before the evening was about to begin and it made the evening start really well. Here are some photos for you to enjoy. The rest can be found on the school server, under "Public" and then "Prom 2009". We already have next year's Prom committee lined up, but a big thanks to Kim and Yu Bin who did most of the work for this one.

A Thank You

A very big Hello to all the AISR folks,

Many congratulations to AISR for completing half a century and marching so strong and vibrant !

Also Thank you all so much for supporting the bag2school program and deciding to spread a few more smiles in India for the second time consecutively through the money raised by the event. Our family has been an AISR family for good seven years and still consider ourselves the same, although we live in Singapore now.

Shalabh my older son has a special bond with AISR as he practically grew there. His eyes twinkle with the mere mention of AISR .According to him AISR is the "coolest"and Shreyas my 5 year old, who was at AISR for only a year ,also gives a big nod to him!

I myself as a parent grew and gained confidence at AISR . The multicultural environment of the school and Parent involvement in various activities is I think the schools biggest plus. Eventually ,I thought of bringing a change into the lives of the underprivileged through my "heart child" www.bhav4india.com .I raised money through my stall of Shawls and costume jewellery at fairs, it was a very small scale thing and the money earned was also not huge but the difference that small amount earned by me brought, surprised me in leaps and bounds every time and drove me throughout. "Each penny counts,each effort matters and each pat at the back encourages" I literally lived this reality and many would agree with me if they visit my website www.bhav4india.com

I hereby again thank everyone at AISR especially Ms.Boot and the PTSA for remembering our family and giving us the opportunity to be still a part of not only the AISR family but also a part of a very positive act "bag2school".

I will donate the amount raised through this program in India during my visit in June-July and send the feedback and pictures to the school and also update my website with the details then.

I also urge everyone to keep supporting such acts and be a part of a better tomorrow.

Thanks again
Warm Regards and love
Bhavana Shukla.
